Community Spotlight: City Park Toy Library

Did you know, that the City Park Toy Library has been lending toys to families since 2009?

The toy library was the brainchild of City Park resident, Susan Wall, after she spent a year in Melbourne Australia and experienced neighbourhood toy libraries there. A minimalist at heart, she "loved not having my house fill up with toys but rather changing a few out every few weeks."

Susan describes the CPCA initial response as "a little skeptical at first" but she and her family were not deterred. Susan, her mother, and sisters spent hours shopping, collecting donations, labelling and bagging toys. They even contributed $2,500 of their own money to help make this dream a reality.

The toy library's first home was the basement of City Park school. It began quietly, Susan noted, but the library "grew quickly, as parents realized they could have a coffee, socialize, and borrow toys with their children". As a result, many friendships with neighbourhood families were built. CPCA was soon on board and generously covered the cost of her family's initial investment.

Two moves later, from the basement of the school to the second floor, then, finally, the present location was found in the basement of the First Mennonite Church on the corner of Queen Street and 5th Avenue North.

The library has been lovingly supervised by many parent volunteers over the years and the toys have been updated and replaced. The library currently houses over 200 toys suitable for children aged six months to around six years. Susan believes that the vision has remained the same: "To build community through relationship and to reduce waste by sharing toys."

Genevieve Gerard, most recent toy library coordinator, began volunteering monthly Saturday mornings in 2018; and took on the toy library coordinator role in 2025. She ended her coordinator role in June 2026 and we are pleased that a new volunteer has stepped forward.

City Park Toy Library is open Saturdays 9:30-11:30am at 418 First Mennonite Church Queen St.

Entrance on the side door - please look for the toy library sign and toy library doorbell. The toy library follows the school schedule (closed long weekends, school holiday weekends, and over the summer).

Please visit the toy library to explore the toys available, come by for some free play in the space during toy library hours or consider volunteering for one Saturday a month. We are always looking for more volunteers!

You can sign up to volunteer using our Volunteer Form (or speak to the coordinator)
